

Thursday, October 19. 2006

Projekt Blackbox: Transformation of corporate computing ?

Carl Howe thinks, that Blackbox will transform corporate computing in the future.:Assuming Sun delivers on its promise to sell and lease these systems in the second half of 2007, this could easily be one of the most transformational computing products of the decade for business. It changes data centers from a build-it-yourself business to one where they are available off the shelf and on demand. And, like the standardized shipping containers in which they are built, most people will never give them a second thought.

Posted by Joerg Moellenkamp in English, Oracle at 07:26