

Wednesday, December 13, 2006

Crossbow Beta candidate

One of the most impressive upcoming features of Solaris is the virtualisation of the network. This is not about virtual interfaces. I speak of virtual NICs, virtualized TCP stacks, multiple IP-Filter firewalls and so on. The project to implement this is called Crossbow. This project released an Beta Candidate of the network virtualisation as a BFU (please read the "Crossbow Overview" document to learn more about Crossbow).

(via uadmin)

Posted by Joerg Moellenkamp in English, Solaris at 21:04