

Wednesday, August 8, 2007

64

A flash demo in Ashley Saulsbury's blog shows, that 64 LDOMs are not a marketing gag : 64 domain capable (UltraSPARC-T2) chip launched today

Posted by Joerg Moellenkamp in English at 14:03

This is awesome...can't wait to run my tests on it. But it is so hard to get hands-on in some SUN-lab. Everybody i asked at SUN Germany about some hours on the T2000, some time ago, told me it is easier to get a Try&Buy machine and then send it home after testing (which was working flawlessly, although the T2000 could'nt be configured with enough RAM for the tests). And i prefer to have some guy which i can ask for tuning specifics.

I remember better times and hope for a change ... since they must be proud as hell for the new Niagara (and the rock to come)
Anonymous on Aug 8 2007, 16:05