

Wednesday, November 14, 2007

Dell resells Solaris

Is there still anybody out there, who believes that Solaris x86 doesn't matter? As Between the linereports:Michael Dell joined Sun CEO Jonathan Schwartz on stage at Oracle OpenWorld to announce that Sun's open source Solaris 10 operating system would be shipping on Dell servers. "We heard from customers that they want better support for Solaris," Dell said. IBM and Dell on our side, HP ... do you really be the only one not to support Solaris x86?

Posted by Joerg Moellenkamp in Solaris at 20:29

Das scheint noch weiter zu gehen, Euer CEO ist wohl ziemlich aktiv:

"This is going to be the first of many such agreements between the two companies," Schwartz told Reuters. "I would stay tuned in the next 30 to 60 days."

http://www.theregister.co.uk/2007/11/14/sun_solaris_dell_deal/

ciao

Alex

Anonymous on Nov 14 2007, 23:56