

Tuesday, March 11. 2008

Alternate universes

Paul Murphy wrote an interesting article in regard of the differences between Windows and Unix admins: So, bottom line, does all this mean truthseeker's "alternate universes" comment is right? I think so - as long as we all understand that the barriers to cross cultural communications are natural consequences of differences in technical and historical context, and thus reflect neither ill-will nor incompetence on the part of the people involved.

Posted by Joerg Moellenkamp in The IT Business at 09:48