Hawking

This is the kind of program i would expect from the public broadcasting system in Germany, not this ever-increasing insult consisting out of game show derviates, daily soaps and half-assed documentaries. When you look at the primary programs in TV you will see the tenth telecast about making a special sausage or how hard it was to transport somebing big from A to B but nothing really interesting.

Okay, back to this movie: This is an really interesting documentary produced by the BBC about Stephen Hawking, the information paradoxon and his actual research.
